

Celebrating 40 years

Commitment to community

From day one, McLeod Law has invested in education, business and charitable projects that build our community. Our founder helped establish Calgary Crime Stoppers, an organization we're still involved with today. We preserved a piece of Alberta's legal history with the adoption of the High River Law Office building at Heritage Park. Each year, we recognize Calgary's entrepreneurs through the Calgary Chamber of Commerce. And so much more. Our team members are involved in dozens of local charities and nonprofits, offering legal expertise or volunteer time to help make the community strong.

A culture of camaraderie

McLeod Law is made up of a diverse group of professionals, each of whom brings their unique perspective, experience and expertise to the firm. Our workplace culture builds camaraderie through volunteer efforts, Friday breakfasts, social functions like our annual holiday party and Stampede BBQ, town halls and the celebration of major deal closings, court decisions and career milestones. Our clients and partners—some of whom have been with us since the beginning—round out our McLeod Law family. These relationships contribute to the small firm feel we're proud to maintain, even as we grow.

Location, location, location

Our original office in Calgary's southeast was chosen to meet the needs of Calgarians living and working in the area. A growing client base necessitated a move to McLeod Law's well-known location on Bannister Road SE, just off Macleod Trail in 1999, then the addition of a downtown location in 2005. In 2020, we tripled our downtown footprint and shifted additional staff to that office to provide a full complement of business and personal law services to support the many people who work, live and frequent downtown. Being accessible to our clients has always been a top priority.

Growing to meet our clients' needs

From our humble beginnings as a two-person firm with a primary focus on Real Estate Law, to a growing organization with more than 40 practice areas, McLeod Law continues to evolve with our clients' legal needs. The addition of specializations in Condominium Law, Personal Injury, Cannabis, Privacy, Estate Litigation and Cryptocurrency are examples of how we adapt not only to the market, but also to support our clients, as they navigate business and family life.

Looking to the future

As we reflect on the past four decades, we have much to be proud of:

- Our team brings a depth of knowledge and experience to our clients.
- We understand our clients and their goals, and play a part in their realization.
- We offer practical solutions that take the complexity out of the law for our clients.

In keeping with our entrepreneurial roots, our plan for the future is to continue to adapt and grow with our clients. We will always be a customer-first organization, and no matter what, we will continue to provide the personalized small firm service our clients expect.
