I do my best to give some help to the helpless, and some hope to the hopeless.

Peter has over 25 years experience with disability insurance law and personal injury claims. He helps ill and injured clients recover the disability insurance benefits owing to them because they are unable to work, and the compensation they are entitled to for the damages suffered as a result of an accident.

For 20 years Peter acted as defence counsel for automobile, life, and health insurance companies before committing exclusively to advocating for the ill and injured through disability insurance law. His keen understanding of how insurers and their legal counsel assess and value disability claims, combined with his strong reputation and longstanding relationships with insurance companies, helps achieve the best outcome for his ill and injured clients.

Clients appreciate Peter's approach to addressing their specific needs by engaging other specialized lawyers in the firm.
