

NEWS

Canadian Life Insurers Want Different Treatment for Assisted Dying

April 11, 2016

Canadian Life Insurers Want Different Treatment for Assisted Dying

Shelley Waite explained some of the next steps required in the advancement of medical assisted death in a recent article by Life Health Pro News. She explains one of the issues is the differing legislation between provinces on advance-care directives and the need to ensure the laws are consistent so that wishes around medical assistance in death would be portable across the country.