5:30pm-8:30pm

Studio Bell National Music Centre

We invite you to join us for an evening of up-close and personal interviews with these two dynamic entrepreneurs who will be putting it all on the table, sharing their unique stories, as well as insights and lessons learned as they got to where they are today.

Rob Fooks, Partner at McLeod Law, will moderate a dynamic conversation for the evening.

About the Host

Rob Fooks will moderate the Evening with the Entrepreneurs discussion. Rob is a corporate lawyer with a background in business bringing first-hand knowledge to entrepreneurs, family enterprises, dental and healthcare professionals, land developers and banks.

About Attabotics

If you haven't heard of Attabotics yet, they are a Calgary-based robotics company that transforms supply chains to meet the needs of modern commerce. Attabotics condenses the rows and aisles of typical retail fulfillment centers into a single, vertical storage structure where, internally, a fleet of robotic shuttles stores and delivers goods to workers for shipping. This saves retailers money, reduces their warehouse space requirements by 85%, accelerates shipping and delivery times, and helps reduce energy and carbon emissions from transport.

About Mount Royal University's Institute for Innovation and Entrepreneurship

The Institute for Innovation and Entrepreneurship strives to develop high-impact students and fill the skills gap between what employers demand and the skills that new graduates possess. This is accomplished by delivering transformative community-engaged learning experiences.
